The Sophomore Year: A Time for Discovery

For most Sophomores 1968 was a year of exciting experiences. Their influence was felt in many activities. Key positions on varsity teams were filled by tenth graders. Making up a majority of the cast of the fall play, Sophomores contributed greatly to the dramatics department. Their presence was also felt throughout the fields of music and art.

As a class the tenth graders participated in many fields. They began earning money for their Prom by selling zip code books. Several times throughout the year their class was able to capture the spirit jug at pepfests. This year sophomores took part in a new approach to U. S. history. Throughout the year all three history classes met as one in the study center. Here they listened to lectures and saw films. This gave both students and teachers an idea of how they would adjust to team teaching next year.

Sophomores have added a definite strength and vitality to our school.
